Better. Together.

You've got big aspirations—we've got the power to help make them come true. As a Capital One® Statistician, you will develop your technical and analytical skills while gaining in-depth exposure to business development. With a network of colleagues, challenging projects and a focus on work/life balance, we've created a dynamic environment with plenty of room for you to learn and grow. You deserve to work in a place where you can realize your full potential. You and Capital One - Better. Together.

Enjoy What You Do

As part of the Capital One Statistician community, you will:

- Apply your statistical skills to understand and influence business problems
- Identify opportunities to apply statistics to improve business performance
- Analyze data, build models and assess their quality
- Design experiments and evaluate the results
- Monitor model performance and make recommendations

Build Your Professional Network

The Statistician community comprises over 100 Statisticians with experience in academia, industry, and of course, financial services. Our focus on recruiting the best associates will build your professional network and your statistical skill sets. Special events allow you to learn directly from our business leaders as they share their personal insights about career development and Capital One.

Learn And Grow

New Statisticians also take part in an Analyst Development Program that provides comprehensive training offered through our award-winning Capital One University. You will increase your professional knowledge and personal skill set through a variety of courses. During your eighteen months in this highly selective Program, you'll have broad, meaningful exposure to strategy development and business execution—so you can choose the path that's right for you.

Throughout the Program, you will receive ongoing mentoring and development advising from seasoned leaders to help you excel in your career. Opportunities to present results and recommendations to senior leadership will further enhance your skill development and professional network.

Hear What Participants Are Saying About The Program

“Coming to Capital One was an easy decision when I realized the importance that statistics and advanced analytics play in driving business decisions. A continued investment in my personal and career development is a clear sign of the long-term commitment to having the best associates. Being part of a leading innovative financial institution drives my enthusiasm for each new opportunity and spurs my confidence in the company’s continued success.” – Jonathan, Clemson University, 2000

“While I’ve only recently joined Capital One, I’ve already begun taking on challenging assignments. The friendly, collaborative environment that exists throughout our company allows me to learn and build my professional network.” – Amber, University of Tennessee, 2009
